- To find out about running skeds and learning to be a sked operator, contact Ken Fischer(9618) the Austravel sked coordinator. Sked Coordinator skeds@austravelsafetynet.org.au
- Maybe you know someone house bound that would love to become a sked operator.
- As we still do not have enough volunteers to activate all skeds through the bases some Eastern skeds will be conducted by various operators using their own radios. Although not desirable, this does maintain a presence on the frequencies at the times listed and still allows members to make contact and check in.
- Austravel is always looking for volunteers for skeds and training is available.
- You can be located anywhere in the world and still run a sked, as long as you have internet access or phone coverage and are available at the time required.

- To keep sked channel selections in line with progressive changes in the solar cycle some channels may change in a specific time slot from time to time. Please keep up to date with each new selcall list as it comes out. Pending changes will also be announced at skeds before they take effect and are available on the austravelsafetynet.org.au web site.
- You can call in on any sked whether it is being run in the East or West. You just need to be on the appropriate channel at the correct time. It is possible to talk across Australia with your radios. By joining a sked you will get to know the best channel for your location at those times. This may help you choose a channel later for Telcall+ operations.
- To find out about running skeds and learning to be a sked operator, contact Ken Fischer(9618) the Austravelsked coordinator. Email: skeds@austravelsafetynet.org.au
- Maybe you know someone house bound that would love to become a sked operator. Austravel is always looking for volunteers for skeds and training is available.
- We need more sked operators in W.A as well.
